He thinks Fuh-chau compares very favorably, as a place of residence for foreigners, with any other Chinese port, regards the beautiful scenery around the place as not a little conducive to good health, by its tendency to promote cheerfulness, and remarks: In conclusion I may say, that having repeatedly visited all the Indian and many other ports this side of Suez, I would prefer the climate of Fuh-chau to that of any port I have been in, excepting Singapore and Penang. School-Preaching. In relation to my labors, I have but little to say. The English school has engrossed my time and strength. I have felt, more and more, that there are increasing difficulties in the way of conducting a large school upon that thorough missionary basis on which it ought to stand. The means and appliances recently set in motion by the government, for the...
